PHIL 1316 History of Religion I (Survey of Old Testament.)

This course is a study of the development of the people and Judaism during the Old Testament period with emphasis upon the development of their social, political, and religious institutions.

Goals: We will attempt to understand the Old Testament writings as they relate to each other and to the world contemporaneous to the Hebrew people. This is not a faith driven study but a cultural, historical and literary view of this important ancient text.

Instructor: Father Jerry Pardue

Text: Paul R House, Old Testament Survey. Nashville, Tennessee: Broadman & Holman Publishers, 1992

Students must have a copy of the Old Testament in whatever translation available to them.

Class Schedule: Tuesday Evening: 7:00 – 9:40 pm
14 classes, final examination period
No class on October 13

Attendance: Students are encouraged to attend class each session and participate in discussion and presentations. Those missing a class need to work with others in the class to get notes for missed lectures and discussions. Presentations must be given when scheduled to earn credit. Completing the assigned reading in advance of class will enhance the learning experience.

Evaluation: 3 Exams and will count towards 60% of the final grade. Our exams are open book and open note.

10% of the grade will be for a brief presentation chosen by the student and approved by the instructor.

Subjects for the presentation will be one of the following:

Joshua Judges Samuel Isaiah Jeremiah Ezekiel

10% of the grade will be for a brief presentation on one of the Psalms chosen by the student and approved by the instructor.

20% for a short research paper on a subject chosen by the student and approved by the instructor.

PHIL 1317 History of Religion II (Survey of New Testament.)

This course is a study of the development of the people and the Christian movement during the New Testament period with emphasis upon the origins, development, and expansion of its institutions and ideas.

Goals: We will attempt to understand the New Testament writings as they relate to each other and to the world contemporaneous to the beginning of the Christian era. This is not a faith driven study but a cultural, historical and literary view of this important text.
